Rider Nation looks for change

After the Riders' fifth straight loss on Saturday, fans are left wondering what's next for their team.

Five-game slump.

Fans say they want more fire from the players as the team extends its losing streak

ROB BROWN

The Saskatchewan Roughriders' 17-10 loss to the Calgary Stampeders on Saturday has shaken Rider Nation. Its team is now on a five-game losing streak and sits at the bottom of the CFL's West Division.

Ken Dietz, a resident of Sceptre, Sask., thought the Riders were doomed before the game began.

"No energy. (Riders defensive end Brent) Hawkins came busting out of the tunnel pumped … and everybody else kind of trailed out," said the 30-year-plus season-ticket holder.

@TheRealJPesos: @dariandurant is not having a bad season I place the blame on the offensive coordinator we need to fire him and hire Buddy from WPG #Riders

@ngibbons: Hey #Taman what changes are you going to make to end this slide?? #Riders #CFL it's obvious something needs to be done!! #ridernation

@NunavutBirder: Labour Day Classic next weekend. Hard 2believe I'll cheer for the #Riders for the 1st time cause of what the #Bombers did to LaPo #FireMack

"They didn't play enough football," said Regina resident Dave Bellman, the morning after the loss. "They should have started the game with the effort of the last 10 minutes."

Some Rider fans in Saskatoon say they've had it with quarterback Darian Durant.

"It's Durant," said Al Mchaffie, a lifelong Riders fan. "We've got to do something there; we need to change it up and get Willy in there."

Others like Amar Vasani agreed.

"We need to make some changes in the offence," said Vasani. "If you look at Drew Willy and what he's been able to do for the short yards — I think we have to give him a chance."

Durant completed 17 of 29 passes for 179 yards on Saturday, compared to Calgary's Kevin Glenn who completed 15 of 24 passes for 171 yards.

The Riders will look to get back on track on Sept. 9 when they face the Winnipeg Blue Bombers at Mosaic Stadium.

Anti-gang group looks for funding for RAGS overhaul

Ambition. Group seeking to re-open for at-risk individuals

JEFF MACKEY
jeff.mackey@metronews.ca

The Regina Anti-Gang Services (RAGS) program, which lost its federal funding in March, now has its sights set on a funding proposal to the province.

Rob Deglau, executive director with the North Central Community Association, says that RAGS has been examining how to improve the program, which provides services to those at-risk and those already involved in the gang lifestyle.

"We got some really strong feedback and the consensus was that the program is needed and people can't wait for it to be reestablished," Deglau said.

"What we are going to get out of this is a document that says 'these are best practices' and 'this is what we did right.'"

Status

"We know that a lot of our previous clients have, if I can use this terminology, fallen off the wagon."

Rob Deglau, executive director with the North Central Community Association

Whereas the previous program offered exclusive services 24 hours a day, seven days a week, this new RAGS program is proposing some serious changes.

"It will work a 10-12 hour day, it will be more case managed and it will involve a whole bunch of different partners throughout the community, who will deliver portions of the services that we were doing," Deglau said.

According to Deglau, the program needs to resume services as soon as possible.

"We know that a lot of our previous clients have, if I can use this terminology, fallen off the wagon," he said.

"They are back to old behaviour, back to their addictions, and that creates a ripple effect on the local economy and our local neighbourhood."

RAGS is putting the final touches on a funding pitch to the province's Ministry of Corrections, Public Safety and Policing, which will be presented on Friday.

The Regina Thunder stormed their way past the Winnipeg Rifles, 39-16, on Sunday at Mosaic Stadium.

The Prairie Football Conference squad went into halftime trailing 16-15, but came out ready to go after the intermission.

"I think we came out very, very well (after the half), I think in the second quarter we thought the game was going to be easy," said head coach Erwin Klempner.

"They (the Rifles) are a really good football team and they played hard but our guys played a really good second half."

Outlook

"We are not a group of all-stars. We are a young group, but we are very enthusiastic and athletic and we need to play together as a team."

Erwin Klempner, Thunder head coach

Thunder quarterback Landon Bessell stepped up and threw for 310 passing yards with three touchdowns and no interceptions.

"I think it was a great team effort and that is what we need to have," said Klempner.

"We are not a group of all-stars. We are a young group, but we are very enthusiastic and athletic and we need to play together as a team."

The Thunder are now 2-1 going into a bye week. The team's next game is on Sept. 8 against the Saskatoon Hilltops. It's a rivalry that is likely to bring out the best in both teams.

"We are definitely ready," said Klempner.

"We just need to work hard and get better every week, that is what the regular season is all about." JEFF MACKEY/METRO

Pussy Riot. Two members flee Russia to escape same fate as bandmates

Two members of the punk band Pussy Riot have fled Russia to avoid prosecution for a protest against Vladimir Putin that sent three of their bandmates to prison, the group said Sunday.

Five members of the feminist group took part in a provocative performance inside Moscow's main cathedral in February to protest the Russian leader's rule and his cozy relationship with the Orthodox Church. The women wore their trademark garishly coloured balaclavas, which made it difficult for police to identify them, and only three were arrested.

After a controversial trial that highlighted Putin's crackdown on dissent since he began a third presidential term in May, the three band members were convicted of hooliganism and sentenced to two years in prison on Aug. 17.

Days later, Moscow police said they were searching for the other band members, an apparent warning to the group to stop its anti-Putin protests.

Women urged to go on sex strike to oust president

The female wing of a civil rights group is urging women in Togo to stage a weeklong sex strike to demand the resignation of the country's president.

Women are being asked to start withholding sex from their husbands or partners as of Monday, said Isabelle Ameganvi, leader of the women's wing of the group Let's Save Togo. She said the strike will put pressure on Togo's men to take action against President Faure Gnassingbe.

Ameganvi, a lawyer, told The Associated Press that her group is following the example of Liberia's women, who used a sex strike in 2003 to campaign for peace.

First man on the moon dead at 82

Neil Armstrong. 600 million sets of eyes were fixed on astronaut during 1969 moon landing

South Carolina Gov. Nikki Haley stands behind the podium in front of a picture display of Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon, in the Tampa Bay Times Forum at the Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla., on Sunday. Armstrong died Saturday. DAVID GOLDMAN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Neil Armstrong took that first small step on the moon, an entire globe watched in grainy black-and-white from a quarter million miles away.

Although more than half of the world's population wasn't alive then, it was an event that changed and expanded the globe.

His first words after the feat are etched in history books and the memories of the spellbound millions who heard them in a live broadcast.

"That's one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind," Armstrong said.

Armstrong, who had bypass surgery earlier this month, died Saturday at age 82 from what his family said were complications of heart procedures.

Those first steps in 1969 were beamed to nearly every country around the world, thanks to a recently launched satellite. It was truly the first global mass media event, Logsdon said. An estimated 600 million people — one out of every five on the planet — watched.

Explosion at oil refinery kills dozens

Venezuelans who live next to the country's biggest oil refinery said they smelled a strong odour of sulfur hours before a gas leak ignited in an explosion that killed at least 39 people and injured more than 80.

Residents in a neighbourhood next to the refinery said that starting about 7 p.m. on Friday they noticed the unusually strong odour. Government officials say the blast occurred about 1:15 a.m. on Saturday when the gas leak created a cloud that ignited.

A total of 209 homes and 11 businesses were damaged in the explosion, and a National Guard post next to the refinery was destroyed, Vice-President Elias Jaua said on Saturday. He said 18 of the victims were National Guard soldiers.

More than a day after the blast, the flames were still raging on Sunday, sending up a column of dark smoke.

Hurricane expected to hit on 7th anniversary of Katrina

Mid-week landfall. Tropical storm Isaac may be a yawn to Keys residents, but it's expected to gather strength over the Gulf

Tropical storm Isaac barely stirred Florida Keys residents from their fabled nonchalance Sunday, while the Gulf Coast braced for the possibility that the sprawling storm will strengthen into a dangerous hurricane by the time it makes landfall there.

It was on course to strike land on the seventh anniversary of hurricane Katrina, a powerful storm that crippled New Orleans and the Gulf Coast and became a symbol of government ineptitude.

Forecasters expected Isaac to pass the Keys late Sunday before turning northwest and striking as a Category 2 hurricane somewhere between New Orleans and the Florida Panhandle on Wednesday.

Louisiana Gov. Bobby Jindal called a state of emergency and suggested that people begin leaving low-lying parts of the state. An emergency declaration was also issued in Mississippi by Gov. Phil Bryant amid concerns of storm surge threatening low-lying areas. Oil companies began evacuating workers from offshore oil rigs and cutting production in advance of Isaac.

The storm was on a course to pass west of Tampa, but it had already disrupted the Republicans' schedule there because of the likelihood of heavy rain and strong winds that extended more than 200 miles from its centre.

Even before reaching hurricane strength, Isaac caused considerable inconvenience, with hundreds of flights cancelled at airports in Miami and Fort Lauderdale. There were scattered power outages from Key West to Fort Lauderdale affecting more than 6,000 customers, and flooding occurred in low-lying areas.

But while officials urged residents in southeast Florida to stay home, that recommendation was ignored by surfers and joggers on Miami Beach and shoppers at area malls.

In Key West, Emalyn Mercer rode her bike while decked out with a snorkel and mask, inflatable arm bands and a paddle, just for a laugh. She rode with Kelly Friend, who wore a wet suit, dive cap and lobster gloves.

A cyclist rides his bike in Key West, Fla., on Sunday. Tropical storm Isaac gained fresh muscle as it bore down on the Florida Keys, with forecasters warning it could grow into a dangerous Category 2 hurricane as it nears the northern Gulf Coast. ALAN DIAZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"We're just going for a drink," Mercer said.

"With the ones that are brave enough like us," Friend added.

Along famed Duval Street, many stores, bars and restaurants closed, the cigar rollers and palm readers packed up, and just a handful of drinking holes remained open.

But people posed for pictures at the Southernmost Point, while Dave Harris and Robyn Roth took her dachshund for a walk and checked out boats rocking along the waterfront. "Just a summer day in Key West," Harris said.

The forecast wasn't funny, however. Isaac was expected to draw significant strength from the warm, open waters of the Gulf of Mexico, and with more uncertainty than usual about the path, a hurricane watch was in effect from east of Morgan City, La., to Destin, Fla.

National convention

Republicans in the path of the storm

The hotly anticipated Republican National Convention in Tampa, Fla., kicks off this week, though it's now at the mercy of a would-be hurricane bearing down to join forces with the tempest already inflicted upon Mitt Romney and the Republican party by an anti-abortion Missouri congressman.

Tropical Storm Isaac was barrelling toward the Gulf Coast city on Sunday, prompting organizers to essentially postpone the start of the convention until Tuesday, when Isaac was expected to have passed by Tampa. The event was supposed to begin Monday, but will only convene briefly then immediately recess until Tuesday afternoon.

The unexpected force of nature has rattled Republican officials, who worry Isaac is distracting from an event aimed at highlighting party unity. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Convention protesters determined to brave the weather

The few hundred protesters gathered under rainy skies in a park about 800 metres from the site of the Republican convention on Sunday said an impending hurricane that is supposed to dump heavy rains on Tampa, Fla., won't deter them from trying to get out their message that America needs to change, especially for the middle class.

Giant blocks of ice spelling out the words "middle class" are melting on a warm, sticky day. Occupy protesters say it represents the melting away of the middle class in America.

That message rings true for Tom Gaurapp and Cheryl Landecker from Freeport, Ill. Both worked for Sensata Technologies in the city of some 25,000 people and say 170 jobs there, including their own, were outsourced to China. Occupy is a left-leaning protest group of people who generally believe that the financial system is stacked against a majority of the American people.

Gaurapp and Landecker say that just a few years ago, they never would have considered joining such a protest. "But then again, we wouldn't have dreamed our jobs would have gone to China," Gaurapp said.

Tropical Storm Isaac is expected to become a dangerous Category 2 hurricane by the time it makes land over the northern Gulf Coast sometime late Tuesday or early Wednesday. Tampa is expected to feel the brunt of the storm with heavy rainfall on Monday. The forecast caused Republicans to postpone their convention activities on Monday's opening day and not that many delegates seemed to be around Sunday to see the protesters.

Police warning

- If the weather threatens their safety or that of visitors on the streets, police officers will use public address systems and go person-to-person to warn them to leave, said Tampa's police chief Jane Castor.
- "(If) it becomes an issue of public safety, we will order people into shelters," Castor said.

Israeli Embassy attack. Cairo court convicts 76 Egyptians linked to protest

A Cairo court has convicted 76 Egyptians on charges linked to last year's attack by protesters on the Israeli Embassy.

Seventy-five of the defendants received suspended one-year sentences Sunday, while one defendant tried in absentia was given a five-year prison term. The court listed eight charges, including "an assault against diplomatic missions" and "sabotage."

In September, thousands of protesters tore down a security wall around a high-rise building housing the Israeli Embassy in Cairo and then trashed its offices. The embassy's storming followed the killing of six Egyptian soldiers by Israeli troops who were pursuing Palestinian militants near the Egyptian border.

The attack prompted nearly the entire embassy staff to evacuate in the one of the worst crises to hit the two countries' relations since their 1979 peace treaty. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drawdown. NATO closes 202 bases in Afghanistan

NATO has closed more than 200 bases in Afghanistan and transferred nearly 300 others to local forces, a concrete step toward its 2014 target of handing over security responsibility, NATO officers said Sunday.

All 202 closed facilities were small, ranging from isolated checkpoints to bases of a dozen to 300 soldiers, said Lt. Col. David Olson, a NATO forces spokesman. Most of the closures have been along the country's main highways, spread across nearly every province, Olson said.

Civil war. The mixed bunch includes butchers, barbers, construction workers and university students

Rebels fighting a civil war they hope will end Syrian President Bashar Assad's authoritarian rule are a combination of army defectors, Islamists, intellectuals, labourers and other ordinary people — who took up arms against one of the Middle East's most brutal police states.

Rebel

"We kept saying peaceful, peaceful. But they came at us with guns and shells and airplanes."

Mohammed Sami, 22

Mohammed Sami, 22, said he sold vegetables and worked in a grocery store in a small town in northern Syria before persuading his father to invest in his dream: a barber shop.

He worked with a friend and their shop had two chairs, big mirrors, electric clippers and a TV set.

After the uprising started, he said they hung a revolutionary flag on the wall. When soldiers raided the village, Sami said they set his place on fire.

Soon after, Sami said he joined the rebels.

Bader Farouh, 17, said he got arrested soon after catching the revolutionary bug. The second time police caught him at a protest, he said they hung him naked on a wall for more beatings.

Afterward, he said his father took him to the head of a local rebel brigade and told him: "Take him and treat him like one of your sons."

Ahmed al-Saleh, 22, said he wanted to go to university after he graduated from high school but didn't have the money to pay for it or the grades to get the government to do so.

So, he said he joined the police and stamped passports at an isolated border crossing with Turkey.

Before he joined the rebels, he said he supported it "in his heart" but kept quiet. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mass burials held in Damascus suburb

Dozens of bloodied bodies were buried Sunday in mass graves in a Damascus suburb where activists claim more than 300 people have been killed over the past week in a major government offensive to take back control of rebel-held areas in and around the Syrian capital.

The British-based activist group Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said 32 more dead bodies were found in the streets of Daraya on Sunday and that they had been killed by "gunfire and summary executions." It put the toll for the past week as at least 320.

Another activist group, the Local Coordination Committees, claimed 300 bodies were discovered Saturday in Daraya and 633 people have been killed there since the government launched its assault last week.

President Bashar Assad, in comments carried by state media, reiterated his long-standing claim that a foreign plot was behind the uprising against his rule and said he would not allow it to succeed "whatever the price might be." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'Mooning the Establishment'. Reports suggest scandal-plagued mogul may be pushing back on press freedom by challenging royals

By letting his top-selling U.K. tabloid run photos of a naked Prince Harry cavorting in a Las Vegas hotel room, some say media mogul Rupert Murdoch was warning Britain's establishment that he could still shake things up.

British officialdom has largely turned its back on Murdoch because of the phone-hacking scandal that has badly tainted his media empire over the past year. So even though Murdoch's The Sun newspaper framed its decision to publish the nude pictures as a defence of press freedom, some observers saw the move as a feisty message from the tycoon.

"Not only was The Sun showing Harry's bottom, Murdoch was mooning the Establishment," said journalist Jane Merrick, whose article in The Independent on Sunday alleged that Murdoch personally ordered the paper to run the photos in a phone call with Tom Mockridge, the chief of his British newspaper unit, News International.

Murdoch, once assiduously courted by lawmakers across the British political spectrum, has seen his clout wither after his company was exposed as having hacked into the phones of hundreds of people to score scoops.

Allegations of bribery, corruption, computer hacking, and obstruction of justice are being investigated, and the scandal has prompted a judge-led media-ethics inquiry that could propose sweeping changes to how Britain's press is policed — potentially subjecting newspapers to government regulation.

If The Sun was cowed, it didn't show it Friday, when it published the pictures of Harry along with a lengthy public-interest justification claiming that the "photos have potential implications for the Prince's image representing Britain around the world."

News International has declined to comment on what role, if any, the 81-year-old Murdoch played in the decision to run the photos, but the mogul's Twitter posts suggested that, at the very least, he'd been following the issue closely.

In a message to a user who congratulated him on The Sun's challenge to the royal family, Murdoch said he "needed to demonstrate (that there is) no such thing as free press in UK."

"Internet makes mockery of these issues," he said, adding that Britain could use some First Amendment-style legislation.

But the mogul also extended an olive branch to the royals, telling his followers to give the prince "a break." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Apple verdict may hurt competitors: Analysts

Samsung's Galaxy S III smartphone, right, and Apple's iPhone 4S are displayed at a store in Seoul, South Korea, on Friday. AHN YOUNG-JOON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was the $1-billion question: What does Apple's victory in an epic patent dispute over its fiercest rival mean for the U.S. smartphone industry?

Analysts from Wall Street to Hong Kong debated whether a jury's decision that Samsung ripped off Apple technology would help Apple dominate the U.S. smartphone market over Android rivals, or amount to one more step in a protracted legal battle over smartphone technology.

Many analysts said the decision could spell danger for competitors who, like Samsung, use Google's Android operating system to power their cellphones.

A loss to the Android-based market would represent a big hit for Google as well.

"I am sure this is going to put a damper on Android's growth," New York-based Isi Group analyst Brian Marshall said. "It hurts the franchise."

The Silicon Valley jury found that some of Samsung's products illegally copied features and designs exclusive to Apple's iPhone and iPad.

Some experts cautioned that the jury's decision might not be final, noting the California lawsuit is one of nine similar legal actions across the globe between the two leading smartphone makers.

Samsung has vowed to appeal the verdict all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, arguing that Apple's patents for such "obvious" things as the rounded rectangle design of its products were wrongly granted. A Sept. 20 hearing is scheduled. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Smaller spaces. Furniture retailers eye condo living

The pint-sized units inside the glass condo towers popping up all over urban centres aren't the only things getting smaller.

"Every major furniture retailer now has a line that is apartment- or condo-sized," says Elaine Cecconi, co-owner of interior design consultant firm Cecconi Simone.

"There's so much product out there for small-space inhabitants that it's become more of the mainstream, I would say, than a trend in the furniture industry."

Census figures for 2011 released in February show multi-unit dwellings — a category that includes condominiums — making up roughly half of all new housing stock, a category traditionally led by detached homes.

The numbers also indicate that Canadians are flocking to urban centres. Toronto's population jumped more than 17 per cent over the previous census period in 2006.

This condo boom, fuelled by lifestyle changes and efforts to curb urban sprawl, is in turn revolutionizing the furniture-retail business. As our cities become denser and space becomes more limited, there's a growing demand for compact, space-efficient and multi-use furniture, says Cecconi.

Storage units with fold-out beds inside. Adjustable tables that drop down from dining room to coffee-table height. These modern, European-style furnishings are booming in popularity as designers and retailers respond to diminishing physical space.

"It's a way to multi-task within a limited square footage," says Cecconi.

"It's really imperative that furniture be the right size for these units. You don't want oversized furniture that's intended for a more conventional home in a small-space unit because it overtakes the room that it sits in." THE CANADIAN PRESS

As I have an irresistible need to suffer email abuse, I've decided to go where angels merely fly over: kiddie beauty pageants.

If you think these things are the exclusive disorder of Americans, think again. You must have missed the Fun in the Sun Pageant or the Starry Night Spring Pageant in Regina so far this year, but there's still time to register your tyke for the judges' scrutiny at the Saskatoon September Pageant or the Regina Halloween Pageant.

Contestants who succeed in conquering the other kiddies by being better looking or better dressed can advance to national pageants and so on. Someday, they could grow up to cut ribbons at supermarkets. Dare to dream.

Of course, this is the jaded outlook of a professional grouch. The organizers take pains to distinguish Miss All Canadian Pageants from those horrid U.S. abominations, also known as glitz pageants. These are all "natural," if natural involves getting all dolled up and parading in front of a judge when you're three when you should be at home pulling the cat's tail like any normal little kid.

Apparently, too, the bad old days are over. Instead of just objectifying little girls, these events now also objectify little boys, although if you go through the photos on the allcanadianpageants.com website, precious few are boys. The vast majority are little girls in tiaras. You see, every little girl gets a tiara just for participating, although the winner gets the biggest tiara — four inches high! Tiara ranking, who knew?

What can you say about a three-year-old kid who has known nothing but beauty pageants all her short life — entering her first pageant at three weeks old, crowned queen 18 times? What are the exact criteria for a toddling monarch? Potty trained? Did not drool?

The queen mother (the real contestant), recently told a local reporter that her kid glows on stage: "She's very bubbly and outgoing. It's something she enjoys."

This self-justifying refrain is familiar to Psychology Today author Martina M. Cartwright, PhD, RD, who writes: "When confronted, devotees said: 'My daughter loves it.'

"For these kids," writes Cartwright, "the constant 'play acting' may create hyper-competitive, shallow adults who are never satisfied."

I suppose pageant moms are no worse and maybe better than those hyper-competitive, shallow hockey dads and moms who need to spend a lot of alone time in the penalty box, thinking about what they're doing to their children.

As far as I know, kiddie pageant contestants aren't subject to concussions, although those four-inch tiaras can lead to a swelled head.

Horse-drawn boat, anyone?

Boat celebrates birthday in style

This was the first canal boat to be pulled through London, England, by a horse in 60 years. The Ilkeston barge was on its way to the London Canal Museum to mark its 100th birthday, after being restored to mint condition in the North of England. It was led there by Buddy, a 13-year-old Clydesdale horse, surely grateful this is no longer a common practice. METRO

Cheap price

The cost in pounds sterling (about $544) that the Ilkeston was sold for in 1945 when it finished its span as a cargo ship. Between then and its restoration, it was used as a "mud boat" for dredging the canal floor.

Horse jobs

- Pit ponies. Used to haul coal underground from the 18th century until 1971, often replacing child labour.
- Hansom cab horses. Fastest way to travel in the 19th century, they were extremely popular. Eventually replaced by taxis.
- War horses. Supplied cavalry units for thousands of years. Finally recognized by a 2011 Steven Spielberg film and hit play.

Kevin Darke steers The Ilkeston after it was restored by volunteers and trainees at the National Waterways Museum.

True Blood recipes

Cookbook stakes out vampire eats

True Blood fans can soon concoct their own blood-red beet bisque, crimson sweet tea and other Cajun delicacies inspired by the hit HBO vampire drama and compiled in a new cookbook.

True Blood is filmed partly in Louisiana and is set in the fictional Louisiana town of Bon Temps. The state's cuisine is often referenced in the series, where vampires and mortals mingle over bowls of okra gumbo, jambalaya, and red beans and rice.

The cookbook, True Blood: Eats, Drinks, and Bites from Bon Temps, was compiled by Cajun chef Marcelle Bienvenu and is being released in bookstores on Wednesday, shortly after Sunday's broadcast of the show's fifth-season finale.

"I'm going to be honest with you, I had never seen the show before they asked me to do this cookbook," said Bienvenu, a chef from the Cajun town of St. Martinville, La., who lived in New Orleans for several years and now teaches culinary arts at Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, La.

"I sat down and watched it with my notebook, and I was amazed how much food was mentioned in the series," she said. "It was fun making the recipes come to life. I think people are still mystified by south Louisiana food. There's still such a mystique about the food and culture here." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The odd (celebrity) couple

The engagement of Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger has shocked Sk8er Bois and wannabe rockstars alike. This is how they remind us of some other strange star couplings.

MICHELLE CASTILLO
Metro World News

Congratulations are in order for Canada's most famous couple that no one knew existed, Avril Lavigne and Chad Kroeger. Lavigne annoyed millions (all the way to the platinum-tinged bank) with her "punk" records and pop singles. Kroeger has drawn much criticism for his lead singer role in Nickleback — so much so that even he's joined in and jokingly lashed back at the hatred through tongue-in-cheek videos on Funny or Die and quips on Twitter.

The two surprised fans and enemies alike by getting engaged after six months of discretely dating while they were co-writing a song for Lavigne's fifth studio album.

But they're not the most shocking couple out there. Here's a couple more pairings that had us stunned.

Ben Affleck and Jennifer Lopez

He was raised in Boston. She grew up the Bronx. Somehow, these two managed to get together for what we are quite sure was a meaningful, not-long-lasting relationship. And, um, Gigli.

Woody Allen and Soon-Yi Previn

Though legally he wasn't her stepfather, Allen's relationship with Previn's adoptive mother, Mia Farrow, made the whole situation icky. It must be true love though: They've been together since 1992 and have two adopted daughters.

Lisa Marie Presley and Nicolas Cage

Gossip mills say that one of the main reasons Cage was attracted to the Presley daughter was because of his obsession with the King, which we're assuming would make for really awkward first date conversation.

Tom Cruise and Cher

Believe it or not, these two were together for a few months in the 1980s. Then again, it was the 1980s. A lot of things that shock us today weren't so surprising back then.

Rufus Wainwright weds

Musician Rufus Wainwright has tied the knot.

Publicist Bianca Bianconi confirmed Wainwright and Jorn Weisbrodt were married in a ceremony last Thursday.

People reports the 39-year-old musician and the artistic director of the Luminato Festival were married by close friend and artist Justin Vivian Bond in a ceremony in Montauk on Long Island. Wainwright and Weisbrodt have a one-year-old daughter together in a parenting partnership with Lorca Cohen, daughter of Leonard Cohen. Wainwright and Weisbrodt were engaged in 2010.

Battlefield of love. Usher gets custody of his boys after court fight with ex

Grammy-winning R&B singer Usher was awarded custody on Friday of his two sons, ending a long legal fight with his ex-wife.

Fulton County U.S. Superior Court Judge Bensonetta Tipton Lane ruled that the 33-year-old singer will have primary custody of Usher Raymond V and Naviyd Ely Raymond, according to court clerk's office spokeswoman Cherrise Boone. His custody will start Sept. 1.

Boone said Usher and his ex-wife Tameka Foster Raymond will have joint legal custody.

Usher's lawyer, Ivory Brown, did not immediately return a call on Friday. Lisa West, a lawyer for Tameka Raymond, did not immediately return an email seeking comment.

Usher, whose real name is Usher Raymond IV, married Tameka Raymond in 2007. They divorced two years later. In May, Usher testified that Tameka Raymond spit at and tried to fight his girlfriend during one visit and that his ex-wife hit him during the dispute. He said he didn't press charges because: "I didn't want the boys to know that their father put their mother in jail."

Tameka Raymond's attorney claimed that Usher provoked her client and that his account is exaggerated.

Katy Perry has joined the surprisingly long list of hot, talented women to be dumped by John Mayer.

After two months, Mayer — who has also dated Jennifer Aniston, Jessica Simpson and Taylor Swift — called things off with the singer late last week, according to RadarOnline.

Unlike the rest of us, Perry apparently thought Mayer had grown up since his days of bragging about his A-list sex life in Playboy.

"Katy fell hook, line and sinker for John, so when he broke it off she was ultimately surprised and incredibly embarrassed," a source tells the site.

"She's ashamed that she got played. It was the classic ladies man move — he added another notch on his bedpost. He charmed Katy, got what he wanted and moved on."

Parents' back to school 101: Letting them go

Parenting. Don't let your nerves take over as your little ones board that school bus

MEREDITH ENGEL
Metro World News in New York City

Acknowledging that you're nervous about your child heading off to school is the first step to feeling better. ISTOCK

Pop quiz: Who's more nervous about starting school this year, you or your child?

If it's you, "it's a very normal response to have," says Matthew Stevenson, a child and family therapist in Philadelphia.

We asked him how parents can send their little ones off to school without letting their nerves take over.

Why does this anxiety happen?

It usually happens the first couple of times that a parent leaves their child alone, even for a couple hours. It's a natural thing to be worried about the person that you brought into the world, that you're responsible for, if you're not there when you are there typically. Particularly the stay-at-home parents, for them to be with this person 24/7 for five years and then to have them go off alone, that can cause a lot of stress. And it's a very normal thing to experience that stress. They're worried about their kid because they know they can keep their child safe. They've been doing it for five years, and now they're giving that responsibility to somebody else. It's hard to let go of that control. Where it can potentially become a problem is if that stress is being picked up by the child.

How can parents feel better?

Acknowledge it. The parent needs to realize that this is something they're concerned about — that's step one. Once they're able to acknowledge that, understand that it's a pretty normal anxiety to have. Step two is that it's important for parents to realize that they need to let their child go. That's part of the growth of their child, to have that independence and be able to function and do well without having the parent present all the time. Part of being a good parent is having your child thrive when you're not around. Then once you are able to let your child go to school, it's important to keep yourself occupied during those times. Have activities, do errands that are a lot easier to do without a child. Join classes, go to the gym — anything that would distract you so before you know it, it's time to pick up your little one.

When is this a problem that needs some extra help?

If the parent is going to school to watch their kid at recess, that would be not healthy. I think calling the school multiple times during the day to make sure that their child is OK, that would not be healthy. Showing that you're so upset, and your child picks up on that and then doesn't want to go to school, that's where it becomes a big issue. If you're able to hide your anxiety from your child, and they still enjoy going to school, it's not as much of a problem. But if it's affecting the entire family, then at that point it's probably good to seek help from a therapist.

Pick efficiency over negativity

Whether it's a source of chest-thumping pride or wearisome resignation, the lament of being busy is one that echoes throughout schools, workplaces and homes.

While multitasking may seem an efficient way to breeze through a stacked schedule, it may have the opposite effect.

"We wear multitasking as a badge of honour," said Margaret Moore, CEO of Wellcoaches Corporation. "Well, the challenge here is that we're working against the way the brain was designed to work."

"When you really focus on getting something done, you use all of your brain's resources," she added. "Those are the moments when you see connections that you don't see when you only use a little bit of your brain's resources."

Juggling multiple tasks may actually have the opposite effect. PABLO MARTINES, AP/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian-born, U.S.-based executive wellness coach teamed up with Harvard psychiatrist Paul Hammerness to co-author Organize Your Mind, Organize Your Life.

Moore said people can get caught up in "negative static" for any number of reasons, from a significant worry to thoughts of tackling a big to-do list.

"It is important to be able to take a deep breath, to mindfully separate yourself from the negativity when you sit down to focus," said Moore. "It's not that you won't come back to it later. It's not about suppressing it, and it's not about forgetting about it. It's more about saying: 'For the time I want to get something important done, I need to put it aside.'"

Valeri Hall Little of Intandem Productivity Solutions said being strapped for time is among the main concerns expressed by clients. "I like them to think about their day or their week or their month as a container, and think about the goals that they need to achieve in that amount of time."

Turn tonight's dinner into tomorrow's unique lunch

The best dinners are those that not only are delicious in their own right, but that also leave leftovers that can be reworked into lunch the next day.

This recipe for grilled hoisin pork tenderloin is perfect. The dinner itself is simple: Just toss the marinated tenderloin on the grill along with a few vegetables and it's good to go.

The next day, turn the leftover pork into barbecue pulled pork by pulling it apart and mixing it with barbecue sauce. It can be eaten on a bun or in a wrap. It also can be served warm or cold.

Grilled Hoisin Pork Tenderloin With Cumin Onions

This recipe makes enough for four dinners and two lunches. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 9.4-oz jar hoisin sauce
- 1 cup red wine
- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tsp hot sauce
- 2-lbs pork tenderloins
- 5 large yellow onions
- 2 tbsp olive oil
- Kosher salt and ground black pepper
- 1 tbsp whole cumin seeds

1. In large zip-close plastic bag, combine hoisin, wine, soy sauce, garlic and hot sauce. Seal bag and gently shake to mix well. Add pork tenderloin — then close bag and gently turn to ensure the meat is well coated. Refrigerate for at least two hours and up to 24 hours.

2. Trim ends from onions, then peel off outer layer of skin. Place onions in a second large zip-close plastic bag; add olive oil, a bit of salt and pepper, and cumin seeds. Seal bag, gently shake to coat evenly. Refrigerate until ready to grill meat.

3. When ready to cook, heat one side of the grill to medium-high, the other side to low.

4. Using oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs, oil the grill grates. Add whole onions to cooler side of grill. Grill, covered, for 5 minutes. Turn onions, then add pork to cooler side of grill. Grill pork for 6 minutes per side. Remove onions when very tender and meat when it is seared on outside and reaches 145 F at centre.

5. Transfer pork and onions to a platter and let the meat rest for 5 minutes. Thinly slice the pork and serve with an onion.

Watney comes out on top at tough Barclays

Even after a year that didn't come close to his expectations, Nick Watney wasn't about to give up on his season.

Amazing how one week changed his outlook in so many ways.

He beat one of the strongest fields of the year at The Barclays, on the tough track of Bethpage Black. Winning the opening playoff event for the FedEx Cup guarantees him a good shot at the $10 million prize. And suddenly, playing in the Ryder Cup becomes a lot more realistic.

That all came into play Sunday when Watney didn't miss a green until the 16th hole, turned a two-shot deficit against Sergio Garcia into a three-shot lead, overcame a trio of three-putt bogeys with clutch birdies, and closed with a 2-under 69 for a three-shot victory.

Graham DeLaet (65) of Weyburn, Sask., fired the best round of the day to wind up in a four-way tie for fifth, four shots off the lead at 6 under.

"It's been not quite the year I wanted," Watney said. "But this really makes it all forgotten. Winning a tournament is hard, but winning out here and against this field was very, very difficult. I'm kind of still on a high right now."

World No. 1 Yani Tseng on Lydia Ko's win

Lydia Ko is not going to the bank to cash a champion's cheque, but she still gets what many pro golfers do not yet have.

Recognition in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

The 15-year-old amateur made her mark in history Sunday as she became the youngest ever winner of an LPGA event by capturing the Canadian Women's Open title with a 5-under 67.

Since Ko is still an amateur, she could not collect the top prize of $300,000. But her glove will be displayed in the World Golf Hall of Fame.

"To have something that's mine to be up there, it's amazing, and it doesn't come down or anything," she said. "So it will always remain there, and it'll be a good memory. It's been an awesome week."

The New Zealander finished with a 13-under 275 total to beat Inbee Park of South Korea by three strokes. But the cash went to Park, who made the score closer by chipping in for birdie from an estimated 40 yards on the final hole.

"The pressure she was handling is really amazing," said Park. "I'm really happy for her. It's great for her career — and I think I was just lucky to get the winner's cheque today."

Ko became just the fifth amateur to win an LPGA tournament and first since JoAnne Carner of the U.S. back in 1969.

Even though Ko is an amateur, LPGA veterans kept with tradition for first-time tour winners and doused her with water. However, her first win in an LPGA was not as meaningful as the U.S. Amateur crown she won earlier this year.

"I didn't cry after this one," said Ko, but (after) that one I did cry," she said. "Yeah, to me, U.S. Amateur is a big event, and obviously this is a huge event as well. But still, as an amateur winning one of the biggest amateur events, I feel like it was a better win — even though this one was awesome."

Despite the big pro win, the Grade 11 student said she still plans to remain as an amateur and go to college in the U.S.

U.S. Open next stop on Grand Slam grind

Champion at Wimbledon in both singles and doubles. Winner again at the All England Club in both events, four weeks later at the Olympics.

Nobody would blame Serena Williams if she felt worn down by this year's jam-packed tennis calendar. She doesn't see it that way, though — even with the grind of the U.S. Open looming in New York.

"I look forward to this," Williams said. "It's almost like a launching pad for what I want to do for the rest of the hard-court season."

In a way, yes, Monday's start of the year's last Grand Slam marks a new beginning — the kickoff of a six-month stretch on the hard courts ends with the 2013 Australian Open.

Call it mental gymnastics, a creative way of looking at things or whatever else might apply. What can't be denied is that in an Olympic year, the U.S. Open — considered the toughest test in tennis under normal circumstances — is essentially the season's fifth major.

"A lot of them," Jim Courier said, "are running on fumes."

Indeed, many top players have had to double down on their fitness and find creative ways of organizing their schedules.

Defending champion Novak Djokovic barely took any time off following his fourth-place finish at the Olympics. He travelled to Toronto for a tuneup and won the tournament.

Then, he flew to Cincinnati, played six more matches but lost to Roger Federer in the final that included a 6-0 whitewashing in the first set.

"Mentally, I wasn't there, wasn't fresh," Djokovic said. "It had been a very busy time starting at the Olympic Games, and maybe that caught up with me at the end."

The Second-seeded Djokovic won the Australian Open. Rafael Nadal won the French Open. Top-seeded Federer won Wimbledon. Just for good measure, third-seeded Andy Murray won the Olympics, meaning the U.S. Open could essentially determine the player of the year in men's tennis.

Though the women's game has been more in flux than the men's of late — seven different winners over the past seven Grand Slams — the math is essentially the same in 2012: Three of the top four women — No. 1 Victoria Azarenka, No. 3 Maria Sharapova and No. 4 Williams — have major titles this year and all need this one to break the tie.

Orioles defying the stats

MLB. Pundits wrote off early-season success as fluke, but O's hold AL's second wild-card spot

The improbable success of the Baltimore Orioles this season has provided baseball fans with a useful reminder that even in this age of advanced analytics and carefully calculated projections, sport remains an unscripted theatre.

You never know what might happen, because — as they say — you've got to play the games.

The consensus favourite to finish last in the AL East after 14 consecutive losing seasons, the plucky O's have defied every expectation placed upon them this year. While most prognosticators wrote off their early-season success as a fluke, they just kept winning.

Now, with little more than a month left, they sit just four games back of the New York Yankees for the division lead.

On Sunday, Baltimore added left-hander Joe Saunders to bolster their fledgling, patchwork rotation as they try to maintain their grip on a playoff spot through the home stretch.

But just how the Orioles are doing this remains something of a mystery.

They are the only team in the majors with a winning record and a negative run differential, a measurement that is usually a reliable predictor of a team's success.

Before Sunday's rained out game with Toronto, Baltimore had scored 46 fewer runs than they had allowed.

The O's have committed more errors than any other team in the AL and have stolen the fewest bases.

"We've been lucky," manager Buck Showalter conceded. "Some things worked out that probably conventionally shouldn't have."

Paralympics. Rugby's Hickling given flag duty

A ferocious player on the court and an unassuming man off of it, Garett Hickling will carry the Maple Leaf into Wednesday's opening ceremonies of the 2012 Paralympic Games.

Hickling will represent Canada in Paralympic wheelchair rugby for the fifth time in his career. The 41-year-old from Kelowna, B.C., was named the Canadian team's flagbearer Sunday.

"This makes me want to hold my head up high and smile hard," Hickling said.

He's intimidating on the court because of his aggression and power. Hickling has competed in every Paralympics that included wheelchair rugby, winning silver in 1996 and 2004 and bronze in 2008.

Bautista has short-lived return to Jays lineup

Blue Jays slugger Jose Bautista, who re-aggravated his left wrist sprain on Saturday, travelled to Cleveland on Sunday to visit noted hand specialist, Dr. Thomas Graham.

In just his second game back since he suffered the injury on July 16 in New York, Bautista left Saturday's game after just one at-bat citing new discomfort in the wrist. He was put back on the 15-day disabled list following the game.

IndyCar. Briscoe bursts past Power for Sonoma victory

Ryan Briscoe got past Penske teammate Will Power out of a caution pit stop Sunday and held off the two-time defending Sonoma champion for his first IndyCar victory since 2010.

After Power led for most of the race, Briscoe slipped into position for his eighth career victory when Power got caught in traffic following a scary crash for Sebastien Bourdais and Josef Newgarden.

Both drivers apparently avoided injury when Bourdais lost control on cold tires and slammed Newgarden into a protective barrier.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Partnerships and affairs of the heart may be a bit stormy as the week begins. Try not to overreact because it is only a passing phase and will pass a lot quicker if you stay calm, whatever the provocation.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Social activities are unlikely to appeal to you today, but matters related to your health and fitness will. Head for the gym or the pool and not only will you feel better physically but mentally and emotionally too.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You seem much more passionate than usual, and that's good, but watch out you don't go over the top in some way. Not everyone shares your interests and some people won't take kindly to you trying to "convert" them.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Your instincts about people are rarely off target but with mind planet Mercury under pressure at the moment you could get the wrong end of the stick. Don't jump to conclusions.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You may be feeling ultra dynamic but not everyone out there shares your get up and go attitude to life. If there is something you want doing over the next 24 hours you will most likely have to do it yourself.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Stop worrying about money and relationship issues and just go out and have fun. Sometimes you can allow trivial things to get on top of you and that's not good, especially right at the start of the week.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The more you try to persuade friends and colleagues to get involved in your latest scheme the more they back away. Why is that? It could be because they are still hurting from how your last scheme worked out.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
If you get the chance to travel and meet new people over the next few days – and you will – you must seize it with both hands. Don't let those at home hold you back – their reasons are largely selfish.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Is there a grand design? Does your existence have meaning? Yes and yes again are the answers to those questions and even if you did not believe it before you will believe it today. There is no such thing as "coincidence".

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Yes, of course, you should respect people in positions of power but that does not mean you have to do everything they say. Sometimes a bit of rebellion is a healthy thing – it keeps everyone on their toes.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Don't be afraid to ask people you live and work with what they think about what you are doing. Some of what they say may be critical but most of the feedback will be positive. Their input is essential.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You seem to believe that everyone but you is in on some kind of secret. It may be true but more likely you are being a bit paranoid. Stop worrying about what other people know – it's what you know that matters. SALLY BROMPTON
